Dear Family, Friends, and Fellow Researchers,

It is with tremendous pride that I introduce Kelly Research Technologies, Inc. The mission of our company is to put top quality scalar and phase conjugate technology in the hands of the vast community of radionic, psychotronic and other “subtle energy” researchers and practitioners.

In the beginning our focus will be to continue to build and support the systems and devices that were developed by my father, Peter J. Kelly, and distributed through Interdimensional Sciences (IDS), Dimensional Sciences (DSI) and under the BETAR trademark. As time passes we will continue to advance this technology by completing research underway at the time of my father’s passing, as well as through launch of new research programs in collaboration with the world’s greatest radionic theorists and engineers.

Instrumental to the success of this new company is three critical factors: First, we have the unanimous support of the other heirs. Without the blessings of my sisters Patt, Inez and Erin, as well as my father’s friend Diane, there would be no grand opening and my father’s enterprises would have fallen silent. Secondly, while this new company is a team effort between myself, my sister Erin, Cathie Jordan (18 years, Editor and Business Manager) and David Taylor (23 years, Engineering and Manufacturing); without Cathie and David we would be lost. They were the heart and the hands of IDS and DSI, their knowledge and experience is irreplaceable to us now. Finally, we have all of you: the men and women who give our company a reason to exist. Collectively you do more investigation and are more responsible for the advancement of this technology than any institute or laboratory.

Which brings me to introduction of this newsletter, the Kelly Research Report. It is our goal that these newsletters serve both as a hub and a beacon of communication for you, the community of scalar researchers and practitioners. We will provide practical information and tips that researchers can employ to maximize the use and effectiveness of their Kelly Analyzers and the other systems we manufacture. We will publish the results of our research, as well as the research of those of you who wish to contribute. We will seek out and discuss the work being done throughout the fields of radionics, psychotronics and the other “subtle energy” technologies, thus helping our users to stay abreast of how new technologies and ideas can be explored, tested and utilized in their daily lives. Finally, we will capture and present fun, interesting and/or important news about our lives, our world and each other, aspire to serve you as an almanac for the modern age.

My father said countless times that the essence of scalar theory is simply that there is limitless power bound in the relationship between information and energy, and through this newsletter and our efforts as a company we hope to be a source of both to all of you!

With Warmest Regards,

Ed Kelly
