Version 2011 of the KRT Electronic Rate Book has arrived!

Whether you are making a custom worksheet or just looking up a rate, the Electronic Rate Book puts virtually the entire collected knowledge of two-dial style radionic rates at your fingertips. From the original rates developed by Dr. Albert Abrams to the most recent contributions from research labs, the instructors and all of you, we have gathered, referenced and indexed more than 13,500 radionic rates since 1978. Also included is an integrated library of 25 of KRT's most useful analysis, balancing and data worksheets. No more working off copies of old worksheets – the entire collection is now just a click away!

An investment of four years of development time, our database of two dial, four dial and 360 degree radionic rates has been rebuilt from the ground up - a brand new program that allows alphanumeric sorting and keyword searching of the entire database. We were very fortunate to work with a database programmer who also has a working knowledge of radionics, so the program was designed with your needs in mind.

Now is the time to invest in this tremendous resource! For a limited time, special savings are available to Kelly Research Report subscribers. For more information please turn to our in-depth preview of the Electronic Rate Book that begins on page 5.

Changing gears, I wanted to share this quote from author Kurt Vonnegut.

I urge you to please notice when you are happy, and exclaim or murmur or think at some point, "If this isn't nice, I don't know what is."

What a tremendous and powerful idea! If asked to remember being happy, many of us will think back to the most notable events and moments in life, when we were on top of the world. But it is equally or even more important to recognize the countless small moments of happiness that exist in our lives. A laugh shared with a friend, a smile exchanged with a family member, the feeling of satisfaction with a job well done or an honest days work completed, plus the countless little pockets of contentment and calm that fill the gaps in the day. Do not let these subtle moments be deafened by the noise made by the aggravations in your day.

Learn to notice and appreciate happiness as it happens and I guarantee you will begin to feel a higher level of overall happiness in your life, with a renewed appreciation for the people that bring these moments of joy into your life. Multiply the effect by making it a point to thank those people for the joy that they deliver as it happens. Tell them that you appreciate their friendship, kindness or the help they give you. New relationships will strengthen and old ones will be transformed in the light of mutual kindness and positive energy.
